Bukva:raz! is an international competition of type design, sponsored by the Association Typographique Internationale (ATypl).

Bukvar:raz! is a special contribution of ATypI to the United Nations Year of Dialogue among Civilizations (2001). The competition was organised on behalf of ATypI by the Type Designers Association, a professional society based in Moscow.

The name of the competition 'Bukva:raz!' translates as 'Letter:one!'.

251 designers from 30 countries participated. Over 600 entries competed in five categories:

- Text designs
- Display designs
- Text/display type systems
- Type superfamilies
- Pi fonts

Fourteen alphabets/writing systems were represented:

- Amharic
- Arabic
- Armenian
- Canadian Aboriginal Syllabics
- Cyrillic
- Devanagari
- Georgian
- Greek
- Hebrew
- International Phonetic Alphabet
- Japanese
- Latin
- Ogham
- Xishuangbanna Dai (New Tai Lui)

100 entries were chosen to receive the Certificates of Excellence in Type Design. The winning type designs are featured in a special book. Language Culture Type: International type design in the age of Unicode. Edited by John Berry and published by Graphis. The touring exhibition includes Rome, St. Petersburg and New York.
